NEW FAST DYED KHAKI DRILLS.
GUARANTEED FAST AGAINST SOAP, Soda and Sunlight, also against perspiration, acids and ammonia.
These Drills are rapidly gaining favor, as the following testimonial, recently received from a Commanding Officer, amongst many others, will serve to show.
The Khakee Drill supplied by the Elgin Mills since January last, is thoroughly satisfactory, the color is not affected by the sun, and is so very slightly by washing, as to be imperceptible unless very closely compared with that which has not been washed, and up to present date I HAVE NOT SEEN ANY KHAKEE DRILL SO GOOD.

STEALING AN UMBRELLA.—At the Police Court on Saturday, Abarut Hassan was convicted by Mr. Webb on a charge of stealing an umbrella. The accused, who was well-known to the police, was arrested by a sepoy as he was going along the road sporting a good umbrella. Accused admitted he picked up the umbrella from a goldsmith's shop, and pointed the place and the jeweller out. Admitting several previous convictions, the last of which was for a year, the accused, though he prayed very hard for a lenient sentence, was awarded two years' hard labour.

THEFT AT A MUSJID.—Mahomed Ismail, was, on Saturday, convicted by Mr. Dosabhoy Framjee of stealing nine silver buttons, valued Rs. 3, the property of Abdool Ali Moosajee. On Thursday evening last, the complainant went to the musjid at Gogharee Mohla, where he took off his jacket, to which were attached nine silver buttons, and hung it on a peg in the wall. Shortly after he found his jacket with the silver buttons removed, and arrested the accused, who was lying asleep in the mosque, and handed him over to the police, who found the silver buttons in his possession. He pleaded guilty to the charge, and was sentenced to one month's rigorous imprisonment.

ROBBING A FRIEND.—At the Fort Police Court on Saturday, Inspector Saunders, charged a Goanese named Fernandez, before Mr. Webb, with stealing Rs. 21-8, the property of a butler in the service of Mr. William Watson. The accused it appeared came down from Poona to enlist in a native regiment. He was not taken on, and put up with a brother, a cook, who lived with the complainant. On Thursday night, while alone in the room, accused broke open a box belonging to the butler and abstracted Rs. 21-8. With this money he went to Poona, where he was arrested on a telegram despatched by Inspector Saunders, to whom the theft was reported. Pleading guilty to the charge, the accused was sentenced to three months' hard labour.

A LONG-FELT WANT SUPPLIED.—Referring to the fact that Mr. C. F. Fearson, who for several years occupied a responsible position at Messrs. Treacher and Company's, Bombay, has opened a chemist and druggists' business at Secundrabad, the want of which appears to have been long felt. The Deccan Times says :—"Next to a good medical man in a station, there is no doubt that a good Medical Hall, where one can obtain medicine to be relied upon, is the next desideratum. We have in Secunderabad long left the want of such an establishment, which want from to-day will cease. We understand that a thoroughly-qualified English chemist, who has had many years' experience in the special requirements of an Indian business in one of the largest dispensing establishments in Bombay, opens today a chemist and druggists' store in Alexandra Road, opposite the Gymkhana. We wish the enterprising gentleman every success, and think there is a good prospect of his doing well for himself, besides conferring a boon on the inhabitants of Secunderabad and its neighbourhood."

THE EYE AND EAR INFIRMARY.—Dr. J. A. da Gama, after successfully removing a large cancer of the eye from an old Hindu, delivered a very interesting lecture on the subject at the Bombay Eye and Ear Infirmary on Saturday afternoon. He told his audience that he had intended to give his third lecture on the diseases of the conjunctiva, but as he had happened to meet with a case of cancer, which was a very rare disease, he would lecture on it. He described the various tumours of the orbit, including the cancer. On speaking of the treatment, he said that the removal of the tumour was the only proceeding to be followed. He had thought of saving the eye, but as he had found during the operation that the disease had invaded also the upper part of the globe, he had removed the eye and the cancer en masse. As to the mode of performing the operation, he said he had shown it, practically, by actually making the operation, and "no description could supplement it." A photograph of the patient, and a beautifully coloured drawing of the disease was shown to the audience.

PARSEE CHIEF MATRIMONIAL COURT.

AT a sitting of the Court, on Saturday, before Mr. Justice West and delegates, the case of Cowasjee Nowrojee Khajotia vs. Soonabai and Perosha Sheriarjee Bharocha was heard.* The petitioner prayed for a dissolution of marriage on the ground of the respondent's adultery with the co-respondent. The undermentioned gentlemen sat as delegates to assist in the trial :—Messrs. Framjee Nusserwanji Patel, Jehangir B. Murzban, N. M. Wadia, Khan Bahadoor Byramjee Dadabhoy, Messrs. Dadabhoy Rustomjee Banajee, Cowasjee Dady Limjee, Nowrojee Jehangir Gamadia, Ardasir Framjee Moos, Dustoor Dorabjee Jamsetjee Sunjana, Messrs. C. M. Setna, and Framjee Dinsha Petit. Mr. Kaikhosroo F. Mody, the Clerk of the Court, although on privilege leave, conducted the duties of clerk. Mr. Vicajee, instructed by Messrs. Ardasir, Hormusjee and Dinshah, appeared for the petitioner ; there was no appearance entered for either the respondent or the co-respondent.

The petitioner was married to the respondent, at Khajote, in the Surat district, on the 6th May 1867 ; and they afterwards lived together at Surat and Bombay, and had as issue a daughter, who died in June 1883, at the age of three years. On the 20th November 1880, the respondent left the house of the petitioner with his consent to go to her parents' house at Surat.

After stopping there some time, she, without the knowledge or consent of her parents or the petitioner, came down to Bombay. Petitioner afterwards learned that she had been stopping at Bandora with the co-respondent, who was a widower. Petitioner thought that she committed adultery with the co-respondent in 1885-86, if not at an earlier date ; and he prayed for a dissolution of marriage, and that the co-respondent be ordered to pay the costs of the suit.

His Lordship granted Mr. Vicajee's, application, that the trial be conducted with closed doors. At the close of the case, the delegates returned a verdict for the petitioner, to whom his Lordship granted a decree nisi for dissolution of marriage : but ordered him to bear the costs, as, in the opinion of the delegates, he had been careless in the matter.

THE BOMBAY UNDER-GRADUATES' ASSOCIATION.

A MEETING of this association was held on Saturday afternoon, in the General Assembly's Institution in Dadysett Agiary Lane, Mr. Jehangeer B. Murzban, the president of the Association, was in the chair, and there was a large attendance of members.

The chairman, who was cordially received, said, that before beginning the actual business for which they had met there, he was asked by the managing committee to give them a brief retrospect of what the association had been able to perform during the short period of its existence. He was very happy to be able to report that the association had been able to do a great deal. At the inaugural meeting, at which he had the honour to preside, the number of members on their rolls was 150. But it had increased to 225 within the short space of five months (applause) ; and he had further received assurances from different educational centres throughout the Bombay Presidency that 80 more members were coming next month, and that after the next matriculation examination, there was a chance of their number increasing to 500. (Applause.) Amongst the new names that had come in, he had much pleasure in seeing those of Khan Bahadoor Dorabjee Pudumjee, the chairman of the Poona Municipality and the crack Parsee shot, Surgeon K. R. Kirtikar, Mr. Dolatri Desai and others. (Applause.) Mr. Murzban thought he could safely congratulate the Association on the good practical work which it had performed. During the past five months, the managing committee had met several times, and had done downright honest work. (Applause.) Two memorials, after having been carefully prepared and considered, had been submitted to the Senate. One of them was a humble protest against raising the standard of admission to the L. M. and S. degree, and the other was about the periods of holding certain examinations, and the permission to be present at those examinations. Although that august body, the Senate, did not, for technical reasons, perhaps choose to take any official cognizance of the memorial sent to them, it was noticed with pleasure, at the time when the question was discussed by the Senate that every one of those present at the meeting had in his hands a printed copy of the memorial sent by this association. (Applause.) And he was assured, that they had had some hand in enabling the Senate to arrive at the conclusion which they had come to. A copy of the memorial had been sent to Government for their information, and they had thought it fit to recognize the existence of the association, Sir William Wedderburn, the Chief Secretary to Government, having very kindly acknowledged the receipt of the memorial. (Applause.) The communication received from Government showed that they were not at all averse to the Under-Graduates' Association and its doings, and that if they acted cautiously and in a temperate spirit, and kept their demands within reasonable limits, they would surely enlist the sympathies of the Government, the Senate and the professors of colleges. One of the memorials which they were going to a dopt that afternoon was on the subject of opening the University Library for the use of the graduates and under-graduates of the Bombay University, and another was on the question of the admission of representatives of the press to the deliberations of the Senate. He was very glad to be able to say that a distinguished professor of one of the colleges in Bombay had expressed his willingness to take up in his capacity, as a senator, the question of opening the University Library for general use, and it was their duty to support him with all the influence they could command. He (the chairman) need scarcely speak at any length on the importance of having a splendid library at their disposal. The University Library was the result of Mr. Premchund Roychund's munificence, and it contained a rich stock of books, such as was not usually to be found elsewhere. They had now four colleges in the city, and it would be a stigma on the fair name of Bombay, if they could not boast of having a library, where they could all meet together on common ground. He was sure they would all agree with him that if the library were made accessible to the thousands and thousands of students, both graduates and under-graduates, a good use would undoubtedly be made of the books, which were at present lying idle, and, perhaps, being eaten up by cockroaches. (Laughter.) There was not the slightest doubt about the intention of the donor regarding the use of the library. The chairman had put himself in communication with Mr. Premchund on the subject, and here was the reply received from him :—"I sincerely regret that the University Library is not yet opened to those for whose benefit it is mainly intended. I hope your Association will succeed in its attempt to render an important service to the graduates and under-graduates, past and present." (Applause.) Again, speaking at the conversazione in 1880, Sir Richard Temple said : "Then, gentlemen, you will ask, 'now that the library is to be opened from to-morrow for reading, for whose sake is it to be opened ?' In the first place, it will be opened for the members of the Senate, and then for the graduates and under-graduates. I beg to announce, on behalf of the Senate, that we hope immediately to frame rules which will enable all students, even though they be of the poorest class, to enter this library for the purpose of reading, provided they get a certificate of admission from the Senate." (Applause.) Now, if any one asked how it was that the library had not yet been opened to graduates and under-graduates, he would reply that it was simply because no one had ever asked for that boon. He was told that there was a good fund at the disposal of the University authorities, the balance of the donation given by Mr. Premchund, which might well be utilized by entertaining the services of a couple of clerks and sepoys for the library, by printing a catalogue and otherwise making the library what it was intended to be. (Applause.) The second subject they had to discuss that day was the proposal to admit representatives of the press to the meetings of the Senate. It must, of course, be taken for granted that all the members of the Senate had the courage of their own opinions. He did not think there was one among them who would shirk publicity of what he might utter in that assembly. By laying open the Senate meetings to reporters, the general body of students, the members of the Senate, the educational authorities, the Government, and the public at large would gain something. One of the daily papers of Bombay, in supporting this view, rather pleasantly remarked that although the admission of reporters was a good thing, there was one danger. Mediocre speakers, says the writer, would come forward and deliver speeches by the yard, and it would be a perfect nuisance. (Laughter.) But, the chairman said, the representatives of the press might safely be left to remedy the evil themselves. Speeches of men like Professor Wordsworth (applause), Mr. Latham, Mr. Jardine, Mr. West and Mr. Kirkham had their own educational value. But the speeches of those whose only delight was to string together a number of sentences might well be left out. Surely, there was no reason to shut the doors of the Senate against representatives of the press, when they were admitted everywhere—to the Parliament of Great Britain and Ireland, to all the municipal meetings whether in India or England, and to the Legislative Councils of the supreme and local Governments of India. It was a well-known fact that in the 17th century, Parliament took it into its head not to admit reporters, and the result that followed was quite unexpected. Reports continued all the same to appear in the papers, but they were garbled and in many cases quite imaginary, and Sir Robert Walpole once said that what he most disliked to read in the newspapers was the speech supposed to be delivered by him, because they simply reported things which he had never uttered, and which were exactly contrary to his views. (Laughter.) Some of the journals took revenge on members of Parliament for having excluded their representatives by calling them all sorts of names. Colonel George Onslow was called by one paper "a little scoundrel," while another said of him, "that paltry, insignificant insect." (Laughter.) They must have noticed here, that although reporters were not admitted to the deliberations of the Senate, there had not been a single meeting of that body of which a report had not appeared in the papers. Some said it was correct, others said it was not ; but the report appeared all the same. The best way to remedy the evil was to throw open the meetings of the Senate to reporters, and thus allow a free discussion in the columns of newspapers of important educational questions. Before resuming his seat, he had been asked by the secretaries of the association to announce that the honorary secretary of the Bombay Gymnastic Institution had addressed them a letter requesting their co-operation in getting up manly sports. The managing committee had arrived at a resolution, subject to the approval of the members, that they should subscribe among themselves a small amount, say Rs. 50, buy a silver cup, and send it to the Gymnastic Institution with the request that it should be presented in the name of the Association to the under-graduate who won in a running match. (Applause.) The chairman concluded by saying that communications had been received from some of the principal members of the Educational Department in Poona, Ahmedabad, Belgaum, Dharwar, Surat, Junaghar, and other places, expressing their confidence that they would send names by dozens of persons willing to join the association. He would remind them, before sitting down, of the story of the father and his sons and the bundle of sticks. If they resolved to stick well together, it would be a job to separate them. (Applause.) The secretary was then called upon to read the following memorials to the Senate :—

To the REGISTRAR, Bombay University.

Sir,—We request you will be good enough to place this letter before the Syndicate at their next meeting for their consideration. The University Library, which was opened about six years ago, has not yet been allowed to be made use of by the graduates and under-graduates of the Bombay University. That it was the intention of the donor as well as of the University authorities that free use should be made of the Library by the members of the University is shown by what Sir Richard Temple, ex-Chancellor of the University, said in his address, at the conversazione held at the University Library on February 27, 1880 :—"I beg to announce, on behalf of the Senate, that we hope immediately to frame rules which will enable all students, even though of the poorest class, to enter the library for the purpose of reading. Our hope is, then, that even the poorest students may have the priceless boon of reading in this library." Again, in the address read by the Faculty of Arts to the Honorable the Vice-Chancellor, Mr. Gibbs, the Senate said :—"This memorial may well and appropriately take the form of a section of the University Library, comprising a collection of the principal works in all languages on political science in its several departments. By recourse to this collection, the members of the University will, we hope, for many generations, while they are reminded of the distinguished public servant whose name it is to bear, become imbued with the public spirit and the liberal principles which, with the abounding kindness of disposition, have endeared him to us and to the whole community." From the above quotations it would seem that the University authorities long ago contemplated placing the library freely at the disposal of graduates and under-graduates. We also beg to point out that the libraries attached to the principal Universities in Great Britain are invariably open to students of all grades. We trust that the Bombay University library will be the centre where students of all colleges will meet, and thus the friendly feeling among them will be strengthened.—We are, &c.

Mr. Nagindas P. Mehta moved the adoption of the above memorial. Mr. Baba Luxmon, in seconding the proposition, said that if H. E. Lord Reay, the Chancellor of the University, who was always ready to assist in all educational matters, favourably considered the memorial they were about to send to the Senate, they would have the satisfaction of doing a duty to themselves as well as to the munificent donor of the University Library. (Applause.) If they succeeded in having the library opened for the use of graduates and under-graduates, they would be assisting in the promotion of the primary object of the donor, and at the same time, of the high ends which the University had in view. (Applause.)

Surgeon K. R. Kirtikar, in supporting the resolution, said he felt sincere gratification in attending that meeting as an under-graduate of the University. (Applause.) Although he had the honour to be a Fellow of the University, he was glad to be present at the meeting as one of the under-graduates by the side of some of his old class friends, such as their worthy president, than whom they could not have a got a better man to be at their head. (Applause.) As a Fellow of the University, he would, of course, give his cordial support to the memorial, whenever it came before the Senate. He had, no doubt, their memorial would enlist the general sympathy of the Senate. There was at present a vast library entirely unused by all but a favoured few ; but it must be thrown open to every student of science and literature. The great Dr. Wilson's books have been preserved there, but they have been preserved, as if only for the purpose of being eaten up by moths. (Laughter.) As for the admission of representatives of the press to the Senate, he thought it was necessary to have the meetings properly reported. They need not be afraid of mediocre speakers inflicting long addresses on their audience. Mediocre speakers were irrepressible everywhere, but the remedy lay chiefly with the press. What they wanted was that the public should see how various questions of importance were taken up by the Senate, how they were discussed, and how they were finally settled. (Applause.)

The resolution was then carried unanimously.

To the REGISTRAR, Bombay University.

Sir,—We request you will be good enough to place this letter before the Syndicate at their next meeting for their consideration. The members of the Bombay Under-graduates' Association, for the reasons hereinafter indicated, request that the reporters of the newspapers be allowed to report the proceedings of the Senate. It is often the case that the under-graduates who take the deepest interest in the transactions of this august body are ignorant as to how certain questions of vital importance affecting them are decided. The reports of the transactions of the Senate, which appear in the public prints, are not always quite trustworthy and accurate, and it would, therefore, be advantageous both to the Senate and the public if the representatives of the press were allowed to take down the speeches themselves rather than compel them to gather hearsay accounts for publications. This concession will enable the public to express its opinions on the important propositions considered in the meetings, and will enable the Senate itself to benefit by public criticism and by the opinions of experts not members of the Senate. It is on these principles that the High Court, the Parliament, the Town Councils, and all bodies dealing with the interests of the public give admission to the reporters of the press. We may be allowed to state that the Madras University has thought it advisable to allow its proceedings to be reported, and that the native press and the local bailiffs have suggested the advisability of adopting the measure proposed by us. Mr. Gibbs, the then Vice-Chancellor, said in the Convocation of 1879, that the Senate may admit reporters to its meetings and so court an expression of public opinion on its proceedings.

The proposition having been seconded by Mr. S. V. Sansgiri, was unanimously approved of.

On the motion of Mr. Jamsetjee C. Jamsetjee, seconded by Mr. S. D. Khote, a cordial vote of thanks was accorded to the committee of management, and to the principal of the General Assembly's Institution for lending the use of the hall.

Surgeon Kitikar proposed a vote of thanks to the chairman, which having been carried with applause, the proceedings terminated.

HEAVY FREIGHT FOR MONKEYS.

AT the Small Cause Court before Mr. Rao Bahadoor Gunputrao Bhaskerjee, Fourth Judge, the P. and O. Steam, Navigation Company sought to recover from Sulliman Hajee and another the sum of Rs. 200, being the amount of freight due on four monkeys. Mr. Smith of Messrs. Little, Smith, Frere and Nicholson, appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Jamsetjee B. Kanga, pleader for the defendants. The defendants were lascars in the plaintiffs' service some time ago. On the 30th April last, the defendants were employed as lascars on board the s. s. Mirzapore, which left this port for Marseilles, taking with them the four monkeys which they kept in their quarte,r on board the vessel set aport for the lascars. During the voyage the chief officer came to know of the monkeys being on board, and ordered the butcher of the steamer to take them away, and cause them to be sold without the defendants' consent at Marseilles when the steamer arrived at that port. On the return voyage to Bombay the defendants were paid off their wages, and they afterwards filed a suit against the chief officer for the value of the monkeys sold, and the case was heard before Mr. Spencer, the Second Judge, who gave a decree for the lascars for Rs. 8. Mr. Kanga, for the defendants, contended that there was neither an express nor implied contract between the plaintiffs and defendants to pay the freight sought for ; and that if the Company intended to treat the monkeys as goods on which freight should be charged, they ought to have ordered them to declare where the defendants intended to take the monkeys, and on its arrival there ought to have offered to deliver the animals to the defendants on payment of the freight, and that, according to common law right, to demand the freight, which can only exist where goods have been carried to the port of destination. His Honor, taking a different view of the case, passed judgment for the plaintiffs for Rs. 200, and Court costs.

THE NATIVE PRESS.

INCOME-TAX ON HOUSE-RENT.

WE have been asked from several quarters whether the Income-tax levied on the full rent of a property is correct. The owners of properties represent that they have to pay a good sum to the Municipality out of the rent, and the tax should be levied on the balance. Of course this argument is worth considering, and we have, no doubt, the energetic collector, Mr. Seervai, will pay attention to it.—Kaiser-i-Hind.

THE CONQUEST OF BURMA.

When General Prendergast conquered Upper Burma without any war and with a handful of men, it was generally taken for granted that there would be no difficulty in restoring peace to the country. A few far-sighted statesmen, however, had hinted that it would require four times the number of men to keep the place in order. Later experience has shown that the fears of the latter were well founded. It has been found necessary to increase considerably the number of regiments, and to put the whole thing under General Macpherson. Our opinion is that these steps should have been taken at the beginning of the conquest.—Bombay Samachar.

A QUEER STORY.

The Kanada Suarte is responsible for the following :—Rather a curious story reaches us from Kanara. A person was summoned for trial before Mr. Bhimaji Venkatesh (now Acting Mahalkari of Bhatkal) when he was the head karkun and 2nd class Magistrate of Kumta. Being not sure of a fair trial at Mr. Bhimaji's hands, the accused person applied to Mr. Wiltshire, the 1st Assistant Collector, on the 18th February last, praying that the case might be tried by the mamlatdar instead of his head karkun. The grounds for the transfer of the case, as stated by the petition, are these :—In a previous case in which he was accused of an offence under section 341 and 352 I. P. C. before the same Magistrate, Mr. Bhimaji after hearing the evidence on both sides expressed himself satisfied as to the guilt of the accused, and said that the only question with him was whether he should punish him with fine or imprisonment. This question the Magistrate proceeded to decide by drawing lots, and when it was found that they declared for "imprisonment" he told the accused that his only hope of escaping imprisonment was in pleading guilty to the charges brought against him. Under these circumstances the accused did plead guilty to the charges and was punished with a fine of Rs. 4. These statements appear in the petition subsequently made by the person to Mr. Wiltshire and were sworn to. Mr. Wiltshire's order on the petition was that it should be recorded with the other papers in the case, which was directed to be tried by Mr. Bhimaji himself. In the meantime, Mr. Bhimaji was transferred to Bhatkal, and the case, it is said, remained untried until he left Kumta a little more than two months ago. We have given the statements as they are made in the petition, and content ourselves with asking this question—Is the system of deciding criminal cases by lottery so very common in Kanara that Mr. Wiltshire did not think it necessary to call for explanation from Mr. Bhimaji as to the extraordinary conduct alleged against him ?

RETRENCHING AT THE WRONG END.

Those who have to deal with the Courts of Smal. Causes at Poona, Ahmedabad, Surat, and Broach are discontented at the Government proposal to abolish these courts and to put them under Subordinate Judges. The Courts of Small Causes in the towns mentioned above are under native Judges and are known to give complete satisfaction to Government and the suitors. The Courts, moreover, are in no way a burden to the Exchequer. The income is larger than the expenditure. We see no reason why these Courts should be abolished. It would, perhaps, be wiser to abolish one second class Subordinate Judge's Court from each zilla.—Rast Goftar.

THE SO-CALLED HINDU REFORM.

We are glad to find (says Native Opinion) that the proverbially lethargic Hindu is at last gradually awakening to the abuse and misrepresentation which Mr. Malabari is subjecting his community to in the name of irrepressible disinterested benevolence. The letters of "Hope" in the Times of India and "Brahmin" in the Bombay Gazette speak out the gauge of Mr. Malabari's efforts, which he may delude himself into thinking is confined to a small circle, until he finds himself "rudely shaken from his reverie." When Mr. Malabari is charged with having maligned and misrepresented the Hindu society to the Europeans, in asserting that early consummation before twelve years among them needs to be removed by legislation, Mr. Malabari replies very laconically 'monstrous misrepresentations." He wants his readers to believe that the Hon'ble Mr. Melvill and Mr. West inserted provisions on that subject in their draft Bills without his having so stated, as if those gentlemen were mere doctrinaires prepared to legislate at the slightest provocation without any inquiry as to whether the evil sought to be removed was real or imaginary. We think the sooner the community relieves Mr. Malabari of his self-assumed office of representing the Hindus, the better.

THE SITE OF THE MUNICIPAL HALL.

The Ratepayers' Association have submitted a memorial to the Municipal Corporation of Bombay, protesting against the change of site for the new Municipal Hall. If the convenience of the bulk of the rate-payers is to be consulted, the present site, opposite Bori Bunder Station, is the best. For this reason alone should there be no disturbance. In their other points, we are afraid, the Ratepayers' Association have been anticipated by the astute Municipal authorities.—Indian Spectator.

IT may appear useless to cry over the spilt milk when the Committee of the Corporation appointed to consider the question of building the Municipal Hall on a new site are reported to have declared themselves in favour of the Government offer. That members and committees of Corporation should show loyal consideration to Government offers is no doubt very commendable, but we think they are equally bound to give some thought to the convenience and circumstances of those whom they have undertaken to represent. The site opposite to the Boree Bunder Station being midway between the Fort and the native town, the new Municipal buildings thereon would be most convenient to poorer rate-payers living at some distance and having frequently to attend Municipal offices on different errands. Besides the present site had the approval of the local Government and had a considerable sum of money spent upon it for laying down the foundation stone. And are all these considerations to be sacrificed merely because Government is pleased to offer a fresh site. The committee of the Corporation may have had its reasons for accepting the Government offer, but the general body of the Corporation and the rate-payers in particular are bound to see that their own convenience and the Municipal purse are not uselessly taxed merely for the pleasure of complying with a Governmental requisition.—Native Opinion.

A STORY OF THE GUIDES.

THE farewell order issued by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab to the Punjab Frontier Force on its transfer to the orders of the Commander-in-Chief in India, published in our issue of the 30th ultimo, will have recalled many stirring reminiscences of the eventful years since 1849, in which that force has played so prominent a part, and especially the tragic incidents of the mutiny years. The farewell order has touched on the famous march of the Corps of Guides to Delhi. Some military writers have considered that march as the most astonishing ever made by any regiment, and such evidently was the opinion of Major-General Sir H. Barnard, Commanding at Delhi, as announced to the Division under his command in a complimentary order, dated the 9th June 1857, commending "these brave and loyal soldiers to the favourable notice of their comrades of the various regiments in camp." We believe, however, that, as a matter of fact, this march was run very close, if not actually outdone by the third Sikh Infantry in 1858. Unfortunately the accounts of their marching achievements of that year have been lost to history. The situation in which the conduct of the Corps of Guides was held in this Province, will be remembered by many still serving in the Punjab, and who bore a share, small or great, in the stirring scenes or the anxiety of the crisis of 1857. It may also be gathered from the account given in the "memorials of Major-General Sir Herbert Edwardes," of the rejoicings held at Peshawur to welcome back the Guide Corps after its return from the siege and capture of Delhi, and various other operations up to nearly the end of 1857. Sir Sydney Cotton, the General in command, at Peshawur, paraded the whole of the garrison on the 2nd February 1858, in full dress, to meet them. They marched in through a line of troops and levies, and amid loud cries of welcome.

"Arrived at the parade ground, they were received with a royal salute, and then the whole garrison presented arms. . . Then the General, with his Staff, rode forward, and addressed them in English, and asked Edwardes to repeat it to them in their own tongue, which he did heartily. Then the General recited their services in this war to the garrison, and a feu de joie was fired all up and down the line three times, and three tremendous cheers from the whole force, which the Guides returned with a will. Then the troops passed round in review, the Guides being placed at their head. . . Three days of rejoicing and welcome, and feastings of native officers and men, ended with a warm and cordial reception of all the English officers in Edwardes' house at an entertainment in his own genial hospitality."

Sir Herbert Edwardes, at the entertainment, ended a characteristically graphic speech, (in which he briefly reviewed the history of the Corps,) with the following words :—

"As we were told yesterday by General Cotton, the first news of the Meerut and Delhi mutineers reached Peshawur on the night of May 11th. On May 12th marching orders were sent to Captain Daly. He got them at breakfast on May 13th, at Mardan, and the Guide Corps breakfasted next morning, at Attock, thirty miles from their own cantonment. That is what we call 'rough and ready,' for soldiers know that it is not every Corps which can march for active service six hours after it gets the order. They kept it up. The Guides reached Delhi on June 9th, having accomplished 580 miles, or fifty regular marches. That amounts to twenty-seven miles a day for three weeks, and I myself have never heard of such a march before. Within three hours of their arrival at Delhi, they were engaged hand to hand with the enemy, and every one of their officers was more or less wounded. Among them fell Quintin Battye, the gay, the fair, the noble, with the bloom of youth upon his cheek, and a career of chivalry in his heart. Out of 600 men, the Guides lost no less than 120 during the siege, and their total casualties were 350. This shows the nature of the service they were engaged in. There is indeed not one officer of the Guides, who has not been wounded at least once. Sometimes every officer of the Corps was laid up with wounds, and an entirely new set of officers had to be appointed.

At last the struggle ended. At last Delhi fell ; and we, who, at Peshawur, watched from day to day and month to month for that event with intense anxiety cannot view with indifference the return of the noble regiment, whose astonishing marches, whose daily fights, whose nightly vigils, whose freely-given blood, whose devoted lives and glorious deaths have so largely, so nobly contributed to the Victory."

Life on the frontiers, in the stirring days of 1849 to 1857, was very different to what it now is. Some lively glimpses of frontier service are contained in Sir H. Edwardes' speech abovequoted, and of which the following further extracts may prove interesting. Speaking of the constitution of the corps, and the races composing it, he said :—

"In the early years of our rule such services were doubly meritorious, The bigotry of the border was proverbial, and to enlist in our service was considered a stain upon the escutcheon of a Pathan. The Moollahs preached against the Guides, they excommunicated them, would not let them come to the Musjids to pray, and threatened not to bury them when they died. In those days many a stout 'Guide,' whose heart had never quailed before the shadow of a mountain pass or the yell of the Jezailchees on the crest, sank at the thought of dying under a Moollah's ban, and asked his Commanding officer to cut his name out of the roll, that he might die easy. Such feelings only made their service and fidelity the more remarkable.

But though the fire of fanaticism on the Yusufzai border has, comparatively, well nigh died out, and a dull routine, broken only at rare intervals by some open act of hostility, has taken the place of the stirring scenes evoked by the fanaticism of the early years of our annexation, the Queen's Own Corps of Guides still retains, and perhaps has even eclipsed, its former reputation for efficiency, if we may judge by the extracts of the special Cabul Commission, which assembled in 1879, and which recorded a memorable compliment to the conduct of the escort to the Envoy, which died almost to a man fighting in defence of the Residency.—Civil and Military Gazette.

LOST IN THE AUSTRALIAN BUSH.

WITH reference to Messrs. George Brearly and Rea, who were lost in the bush between the Genoa and Cann Rivers, Victoria, the Boya Standard has obtained the following particulars from Mr. R. Alexander, of Genoa :—"It appears they made an early start from the Genoa, with the intention of striking the residence of Mr. Morgan, on the Cann River, before nightfall, taking only sufficient lunch for the mid-day meal. The way is by a bridle track until within a mile or two of Morgan's, the distance being about 35 miles. At this point the road becomes intricate, cattle tracks verging off in various directions, and it was here

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

SATURDAY EVENING, AUG. 7.

THE tendency of money in the London market is still towards increased firmness, the rate of discount on 6 months' bills having advanced ½ to 2⅝, against 1⅞ on 3 months' paper. Consols, however, have recovered ⅛ to 101¼, and Indian Sterling stock remains unchanged 3½ per cent. at 101. Bar Silver Reuter continues to quote at 42d. per oz., but the securities affected by Silver are irregular, Rupee Paper showing a decline of 3-16 in 4 and an advance of ¼ in 4½ per cent., while Indian Exchange Bank Shares are £1 lower for Chartered and Chartered Mercantile, £2 in Honkong and Shanghai, which are now back to £57, the lowest point touched before the recent recovery.

Respecting the London General Produce markets the only change reported is in Calcutta Rapeseed, which is quoted 9d. per quarter lower.

COTTON in Liverpool yesterday closed dull in tone, and although a fair day's business was done,—10,000 bales including 600 Surats,—prices were lower both for spots and arrivals. Ready Omras and Dholleras were 1-16d. lower, and Americans, to arrive, 1-64d. weaker, except in the intermediate positions. Saturday's market showed no change in prices, but the tone seems steadier, arrivals, Reuter says, being firmer. In New York yesterday Futures advanced 4 points, but to-day come 5 points lower, a net decline of one point in the two days.

The statistical position has not undergone any change of a special character since the previous Friday. The Liverpool stock has declined 5,000 bales, and the visible supply for all Europe 40,000 bales in the week, at which they stand 134,000 and 30,000 bales, respectively, below the corresponding date last year. It is not, however, the immediate question of supply which will affect values, but the news regarding the New American crop, judging from the uncertain character of the movements reported of late both from Liverpool and New York, but particularly the latter, the private advices from the cotton growing states must be of a conflicting nature, and the next monthly condition report of the Washington Agricultural Bureau, due here on Thursday, will be waited for, therefore, with additional interest.

The American Crop figures to date give the following comparisons with the two previous seasons :—

Week's Receipts	7,000	2,000	2, 00
„ Exports to U. K.	22,000	6,000	15,000

The total visible supply of Cotton for all Europe on the 6th instant affords the following comparisons with the two previous years :—

	1886.	1885.	1884.
Total supply of all kinds	1,400,000	1,430,000	1,793,20

COTTON here to-day has been exceedingly quiet, and we have not heard of any business for export either in ready old or new crop for future delivery. Native speculators amongst themselves, however, are reported to have bought and sold Good Broach for March at Rs. 225 per candy.

WHEAT is a trifle easier for Soft descriptions, but hard kinds, especially Hard Yellows, are extremely scarce. The following are to-day's quotations :—

Fine Pessy	Rs. 4-4-6	per cwt.
No. 1 do.	„ 4-3-6	„
No. 1 Club Delhi	„ 4-0-6	„
Hard Yellow	„ 4-1-6	„
Red Ahmedabad	„ 3-15	„

SEEDS are quiet all round. Linseed is back again to Rs. 7. Rapeseed meets but a very restricted enquiry at Rs. 5-14 for Yellow Guzerat, Rs. 4-14 for Red Delhi.

The receipts of produce into Bombay yesterday were :—

Cotton	828 bales.
Wheat	48,878 cwts.
Linseed	11,463 „
Rapeseed	4,433 „
Gingelly	2,922 „

FREIGHTS continue steady, and for Continental ports holders of tonnage are now trying to get £1-3-9, but we would still call £1-2-6 the rate. The following are to-day's quotations :—

PIECE-GOODS.—Reuter furnishes us to-day with his usual monthly statement of the shipments of Cotton Goods and Yarns from the U. K. to India, during the preceding month. From the comparative statement which we subjoin, it will be seen that for Bombay there has been a considerable falling off as compared with June in Plain Cotton, but that the figures are much on a parity with July of last year save in the matter of Twist, in which the decline is very marked. Calcutta, on the other hand, shows a heavy reduction in supplies, both as compared with the previous month and July 1885. This, practical men know, is largely due to the recent fall in Exchange, which is bound to check business in imports until prices adjust themselves, although we may be told from other quarters that it has nothing whatever to do with it.

EXCHANGE.—Partly owing to the fact that the reported decline in the value of Silver to below 42d. per oz. has not been confirmed, but also to a diminution in the demand for remittance, Exchange has shown greater steadiness to-day, and at the close might almost be called firm at the following rates for ready bills :—

GOVERNMENT PAPER is unchanged at Rs. 97 7-16 for Fours and Rs. 101 for Fours-and-a-half.

SHARES are generally unaltered except in Spinning and Weaving Mills, which are mostly a shade firmer. Anglo-Indian and Imperials are exceptions, the former being Rs. 4 and the latter Rs. 5 per share lower.

The Bombay Gazette

MONDAY, AUGUST 9, 1886.

WHEN the Government at Pekin hear that the Times has called the attention of the public to the growing importance of China, and has urged that cordial relations should be maintained between Great Britain and that country with a view of combating Russian aggression, they will read in the advice which the London journal has given a declaration of the policy which the new Administration intends to pursue with regard to its great Asiatic neighbour. Whether they will be right or wrong in so interpreting a mere leading article is another matter; but we need not lose sight of the fact that in Lord Beaconsfield's day the Times once boasted that it had some acquaintance with the working of the Prime Minister's mind, and it is not impossible that Lord Salisbury may have thought the columns of a metropolitan paper a convenient medium for proclaiming that he means to cultivate the entente cordiale with China. And this would not have been the first occasion on which the Prime Minister had made that proclamation. In his speech at the Mansion House last November, Lord Salisbury accompanied his reference to the Burmese difficulty by a congratulatory intimation that in this business England had the friendship and the goodwill of China. This is the mark of an important change in the politics of Asia and the politics of England in Asia. Ten years ago the declaration would have been meaningless or worthless; thirty years ago it would have been impossible. To the Chinese as to the Romans the nations of the earth outside their own bounds were, by the nature of things, enemies and barbarians. Left to themselves they would have had nothing to do with them or their ways. If it was whispered to a Chinese statesman that his country would profit as others had done by the introduction of the electric telegraph, some crushing objection was adduced out of the armoury of Celestial empiricism, and the sentimental but conclusive objection was urged that the shadow of the telegraph wires would fall upon the graves of the departed and interfere with the comfort of their souls. The fact is illustrative of the pervading spirit of the old regime in China. The people would, if they could, have walled themselves in by sea, as on one side they have walled themselves in by land, and the be-all and the end-all of their foreign policy would have been to have no relations with the foreigner. The change that has come about in the memory of men scarcely yet middle-aged is almost revolutionary in its thoroughness. The presence of Chinamen in the streets of London—students, young men of wealth and station who are doing the grand tour, merchants going backwards and forwards from their houses in Bayswater and Bloomsbury to their places of business in the city—is the most visible token to Englishmen of the importance of the change. But it is in China itself, where the stereotyped and exclusive Conservatism of other days has given place to a ready use of the resources of Western civilization, and to a policy of close relationship with the Powers from whom it formerly held jealously aloof, that the difference between the new China and the old is to be seen. If the Pekin Government have within the past few weeks rejected the offer of German capitalists to co-operate with them in opening up the country to railways, it is certainly not because of the old-fashioned fear lest this should open up the country to foreign invasion. The offer will be accepted if it is made at the right time and in the right way, and let us add by the right people. China has done wonders in the way of progress within the past five years in overcoming her former objections to the electric telegraph, invention of the devil though it was held to be. It is a fact of large political importance that by means of the telegraph Pekin in the far north has put itself into communication with Yunnan, at the south-western extremity of the Empire. This has brought together authorities who until quite recently occupied the greater part of a year in interchanging communications, and the result in unity of administration that will follow cannot well be over-estimated. The local viceroys, more independent of the Imperial Government than the French nobles were of the Monarchy before Richelieu's day, will be brought into due administrative subordination to Pekin. An instance of the new tendencies is seen in the recent abolition of the system by which the naval defence of the Empire was left to the discretion of the viceroys of the maritime provinces, who each provided guns, ships, and coast defences at his own will and without regard for the provision that the viceroy of the next province may or may not have made, or for the requirements of the Imperial Government. The naval defence of the country has now been made a matter of Imperial charge, and the Marquis Tseng, the accomplished diplomatist who has represented China in London and Paris for the past five years having been placed at the head of the Naval Board. Of the strange and unexpected growth of military strength which the struggle with France has induced—so startlingly in contrast with a past experience which made the rest of the world look upon the Chinese as the most pusillanimous of Asiatic peoples—French publicists are better able to speak than any one else. The French have done for the Chinese what Charles the Twelfth of Sweden did for the Russians. They have taught them to fight. The two Powers have gone over pretty much the same ground in Sweden and Russia went over from Narva to Pultawa, and the Chinese have come out of their Pultawa potentially a military power, and no longer, in Mr. Challemel-Lacour's foolish phrase, une quantite negligeable. It is not the business of England to exalt the Chinese Power by cultivating over-much an Anglo-Chinese alliance. But we have in the case of Persia a warning against despising the services of any Asiatic State which may help us in counterbalancing the influence of Russia. Chinese influence will not in any case run to waste. It we do not enlist it others will; and common prudence dictates the cultivation of friendly relations with a Power which has shown such signs of vigour, whose frontier is conterminous with our own, and which may have, in common with ourselves, to stand up at any time to resist the progress of Russia eastward and south-eastward.

THE Committee appointed by the Corporation to report upon the offer by Government of a new site upon the Oval for the Municipal Offices have, as we intimated the other day, decided upon recommending the acceptance of the offer. It will be seen from the report, which we print elsewhere, that the committee have carefully kept within their own consciousness whatever reasons they may have to urge for the course they recommend. They tell their colleagues that they have taken all things into consideration, but what the "all things" may include, or what was the process by which they led the committee to their conclusion, does not appear. The public will be disposed to doubt the strength of a case which has been set out so badly, and without any attempt at giving a specific justification for it. The supporters of the course proposed will not, we suppose, continue to the end to be as indifferent to the why and wherefore of the business as they have been hitherto. The onus probandi lies upon them as it always must upon those who urge the abandonment of a course resolved upon deliberately and in the light of day, and in full regard for all that could be said for and against it. We should hesitate even now to say that the offer made by the Government would not warrant a departure from the intention of the Corporation to locate the Municipal offices near Bori Bunder. But it is literally true that though the matter has been before the Corporation for nearly three weeks, and though a committee have reported upon it, no one has any authentic knowledge whatever of the grounds upon which the change is advocated. The report which recommends it, and which might have been written on the back of an envelope, is a remarkable application to serious uses of the formula, "taking one consideration with another." But it is noteworthy for nothing else, and on the eve of the decision of the question the public are absolutely in the dark as to the grounds on which it is to be decided. If the Corporation are still of opinion that the matter is one on which judgment can be taken only with the help of a committee, their best course would be to refer it back, with the request for a more specific setting forth of the reasons which have led the Committee to their conclusion. The objections to the change proposed are specific enough, and we believe weighty enough to demand an answer of some sort. There is a strong and widely prevalent belief that the site can be transferred only at considerable inconvenience to the bulk of the people concerned in municipal administration. We have no means of knowing what answer the committee have to make to the objections founded upon this belief; but a proposal to erect municipal offices at the wrong end of the town assuredly does not prima facie recommend itself to public acceptance, and it comes with no greater force than it would have done three years ago, when the oval was an open space as it is now, and when it might have been just as appropriately included in the category of available sites. The objection again that the magnificence of the Bori Bunder Station would dwarf the more modest graces of Mr. Chisholm's five lakh building is urged rather too late in the day. The railway station had shown something of the stateliness of its proportions when the Corporation spent twelve thousand rupees in formally dedicating the site on the other side of the road, and it has not been within the last three weeks that the Government and some members of the Corporation have discovered that the Bori Bunder Station was a place of great beauty, and that it cost twenty-seven lakhs—not half-a-million sterling, as some eager apologists for the newest notion have represented. It has been suggested that a change of site would obviate the inconvenience to the municipal staff which would result from the noise of the railway engines and the jingling of the horse bells at a tramway junction. But at the Bori Bunder administrative offices there is a staff of more than three hundred officials and clerks, who do their work fairly well in spite of the sounds of activity which surround them. If it is a Sleepy Hollow that the Municipal authorities are seeking after, where they would be free from the sounds of life in a busy city, they might find that the Oval, and sites even nearer to Colaba Point, would not be so much more suitable than the spot which it is proposed to abandon. The Corporation would do well to remember at their meeting on Wednesday that they are asked to take a decision upon a question in which the permanent convenience of the public is concerned before the reasons for it have been even hinted at. The propriety of disposing of the matter under such circumstances may be questioned, and the Corporation might do a worse thing than defer the final decision of the question until the public, who are fully informed of the objections to the new site, and have been put in possession of some at least of the arguments which are to be urged in its favour.

THE South Kanara ryots are carrying on their agitation against the Forest Department under difficulties from which their more fortunate brethren in the Thana district last year were free. We have seen how the zeal of an able official expended itself in bringing about the removal of a humble village schoolmaster whose sisters, cousins, and aunts had been proved to be in sympathy with the dangerous people who say that there is something short of perfection in the forest administration of the district. But we have not yet heard in what way the Government propose to reward this zealous gentleman according to the wisdom of his zeal. It would be interesting to learn if the Government, after looking into this matter, have laid it down as a general principle that it is a commendable thing for officials to put down societies like the Sirsi Sabha, by measures which, if a National Leaguer in Ireland had resorted to them, would have been called intimidation. They have, however, an opportunity of showing the Kanara people that they are not quite so sensitive in regard to their forest proceedings in that part of the Presidency as some of their zealous servants have been. The Sabha, refused in turn by the Mamlutdar, the Collector, and the Commissioner, a sight of the files of the forest circulars for a few years past, have appealed to the Government. It is not every one who would care to help "the other side" to find material to make out their case. But Governments—particularly Governments with minds conscious of nothing but rightful doing,—can afford to be magnanimous, and unless it is held at Poona that the Sirsi Sabha is an incorrigibly naughty organization, which must not be encouraged for a moment, the Government might do a much more risky thing than allow them to look at documents, none of them believed to be confidential, and the sight of which, the memorialists believe to be absolutely essential for the due preparation of the representations which they intend to make to Government. It might, indeed, be worth while for the Government to deal with their request in such a way as to remove the impression that there has been a narrowness in their treatment of forest matters in Kanara which has happily been wanting in their forest policy elsewhere.

THE University Graduates' Association have so far done themselves the inestimable service of keeping clear of impossible and impracticable schemes. At their meeting on Saturday they asked for nothing but what reasonable young men, even if graduates, might ask for. When they urge that the meetings of the Senate should be opened to the reporters they do the University a service which the Senators, who have never yet shown a special antipathy to seeing their "stuff in print," ought to be the first to appreciate. The wonder is that the Senate should have left it to any one else to urge that their wisdom should be given to the world in all the rich amplitude of shorthand reports. We suppose it is as certain that this request will be granted as that senatorial eloquence will increase so soon as the reporters are permitted to give it the swift wings of verbatim record. The other request which the Association have preferred is equally reconcilable. When Mr. Premchund Roychund writes to express his surprise that the library which he gave has not yet been put at the service of the students in the University it is evident that there has been a failure to carry out the founder's intention. There is, indeed, abundant proof that the library has not been available to all for whom it was meant. There is no provision in the Trust deed which dedicates the books to the use of the white ants for ever, and yet we understand that they profited more by the library than any other book-loving class. The Senate are asked to give to students privileges which hitherto have been largely claimed for ants, and the students seem to us to have a preferential interest in the matter.

MR. ANDREW SCOBLE, who has been offered the Legal Membership of Council, in succession to Mr. Ilbert, will be well remembered in Bombay as having been Advocate-General some years ago. He is a Conservative, and in that interest contested Shrewsbury in 1880 and a metropolitan constituency at the elections last year, failing on both occasions.

THE QUEEN AT THE INDO-COLONIAL EXHIBITION.

LONDON, JULY 16.

YESTERDAY, Her Majesty the Queen paid her fourth visit to the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, and came up from Windsor specially to do so. On this occasion, the doors of the Exhibition were closed till after one o'clock to ticket-holders, and thus a private character was given by the Queen's desire to her visit. Her Majesty wished to examine the galleries more minutely than heretofore. The longest pause was made in the Ethnological courts of India, but as will be seen by the official account of the affair, which Sir Phillip Owen has just handed me, Her Majesty pretty well explored every section of the buildings. Her Majesty, accompanied by H. R. H. the Princess Beatrice, and H. R. H. Prince Henry of Battenburg, and attended by General Sir H. Ponsonby, K.C.B., Colonel Sir Henry Ewart, K.C.B., Major Bigge, C.B., and the Dowager Duchess of Athole, arrived at the Queen's Gate entrance at 10-45. On entering the Indian Section, Her Majesty was received by Sir Phillip Cunliffe-Owen, K.C.B., Secretary to the Royal Commission, and was conducted through this section by Mr. E. C. Buck, Commissioner for India. Her Majesty made a careful and detailed inspection of the art collections, the Imperial Economic Section, and the Indian Palace. The following gentlemen connected with the Indian Section had the honour of being presented to Her Majesty :—Mr. J. R. Royle, C.I.E., Assistant-Secretary to the Royal Commission, and Official Agent for the Government of India; Major Nevill, C.I.E., Commissioner for H. H. the Nizam of Hyderabad; Colonel A. Le Messurier, C.I.E., Commissioner for H. H. the Maharajah of Mysore; Mr. M. M. Bhownuggree, C.I.E., Commissioner for H. H. the Thakore Saheb of Bhownugger; Dr. George Watt, C.I.E., in charge of the Imperial Economic Section; Mr. B. J. Bose, Messrs. Mukharji and Gupté, Assistants in the Indian Section; Mr. Purdon Clarke, C.I.E.; Mr. H. S. King, M.P., Agent for India Royal Commission; Mr. Thomas Wardle, in charge of the Silk Culture Department (who had the honour of explaining to Her Majesty the collection of Silk Exhibits, which he had brought together), and Dr. Tyler, C.I.E., in charge of the Indian Native Artizans. While passing through India, Her Majesty visited the Ceylon Section, where she was received by Sir Arthur N. Birch, K.C.M.G., Executive Commissioner; Mr. Saunders, Mr. Davdson (the Secretary to the Ceylon Commission), Dr. Trimen and Mr. Smither. After leaving the Indian Section, Her Majesty proceeded to the Maltese Court, where she was received by Sir Victor Houlton, G. C.M.G., the Executive Commissioner for Malta, and Mr. E. T.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

POONA, August 7.

Lord Reay presided at the Meeting of the Bombay Legislative Council held at the Council Hall to-day.

Mr. Dayaram Jethmal took his seat for the first time as a member of the Council.

The Hon'ble M. Melvill introduced Bill No. 3 of 1886, to enable the Municipal Corporation of the City of Bombay to raise increased revenue from town duties. He reminded the Council that the necessity of increasing the water supply of Bombay had long been recognised. The Tansa scheme had accordingly been taken in hand, and provision had now to be made for paying the interest on the loan, which would have to be taken up, and for repaying the principal in sixty years from the date of the completion of the work. To do this the Corporation had to raise an additional revenue of Rs. 3,70,000 annually for seven years, and a further revenue of Rs. 2,30,000 for 60 years after the works were completed. The latter would be obtained from the increased water-supply, the former had to be provided for. The Corporation had asked the assistance of the Legislature, and for this purpose the Bill had been introduced.

The Hon'bles Forbes-Adam, Dayaram Jethmal and K. T. Telang joined in the discussion on the first reading. The Bill was read a second and third time and passed.

The Hon. M. Melvill next introduced Bill No 4 of 1886, vesting the port of Karachi in a trust, and moved the first reading.

The Hon. Dayaram Jethmal criticised the proposed constitution, and asked for the natives to be represented on the trust.

The Hon'bles Forbes-Adam and K. T. Telang having spoken, the Bill was read a first time, and referred to a select Committee composed of Messrs Naylor, Forbes-Adam, Dayaram and the mover.

The Council then adjourned.

The assault-at-arms, which is to be given at the Gaiety Theatre on the 8th of next month, will be an interesting novelty, as it is the first meeting of the kind in Bombay, limited to Volunteers. The attention that is being paid to athletics by the Bombay Volunteers is a healthy sign, and the movement is one that deserves public support.

Mr. Ilbert will be able to remain in India until the end of the current Legislative Session.

In view of extensive operations in Burma in October, transport mules from the various stations in Upper India are being sent to Calcutta for shipment to Rangoon. Burma itself cannot provide transport to any large extent, so India has been necessarily indented on.

During the forthcoming operations in Burma, Sir Herbert Macpherson will report direct to the Commander-in-Chief in India on all matters connected with the operations and to the Madras Government on routine matters concerning the troops from the Southern Presidency.

The Bombay mail for Allahabad was so late at Jubbulpore on Thursday evening that the E. I. R. train started without it. The accident postponed the arrival of Sir John Edge, the new Chief Justice, who was expected at Allahabad on Friday, but has been detained a day against his will at Jubbulpore.

The death is announced of Zinath Mahal Begum, the widow of Shah Bahadoor, the last Moghul Emperor of Delhi, and mother of Prince Jewan Bukht, who died at Rangoon recently. The Begum was seventy-three years of age, and was credited with having taken a prominent part in the Indian Mutiny of 1857. For some years past, she has been in receipt of a pension of Rs. 500 a month from Government, with a free house, having been State prisoner in Rangoon since 1858.

The Council of Regency which is to conduct the affairs of the Gwalior State will consist of seven members, with Sir Gunpat Rao as president. The members severally hold the higher administrative offices of the State.

It explained that no legislation is required for the formation of the North-Western Provinces Council, but only a proclamation, which has been prepared, and is being submitted for the previous sanction of Her Majesty under section 49 of the India Councils Act, 1861.

The statement that the Secretary of State has sanctioned the formation of a Chief Court in Burma seems premature. The Home authorities approved generally of the scheme formed last year, but asked for a copy of the Bill before its introduction. The Bill, with an explanatory despatch, is now before them, but no reply has been yet received.

The Pioneer says:—"It is settled that Sir Steuart Bayley succeeds Sir Rivers Thompson as Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in the spring. Although this has long been accepted by the public as almost a foregone conclusion, it is satisfactory to know that the arrangement has been absolutely made. It is in every respect a desirable appointment, and one that will meet with universal approval."

Lieutenant-Colonel Prince Louis Esterhazy has left Simla to pay a visit to the Kheddah Establishment at Dacca, where he will be the guest of Mr. Sanderson, the Superintendent. Probably, despite the unfavourable time of the year, and the long grass and flooded state of the country, his host may be able to show him a tiger or two in addition to the fine elephant stud.

Mr. T. W. Holderness, on return from furlough in November, will again take up the appointment of Under-Secretary in the Revenue and Agricultural Department, the North-West Government not being able to provide for him suitably. Mr. C. S. Bayley, who has been holding Mr. Holderness's place for the past 15 months, goes to Ajmere as Assistant Commissioner, vice Mr. L. W. King.

Colonel Ben Williams, Director of Army Remount Operations, reports favourably of the Persian districts which he has so far visited, though he has not yet actually reached the largest breeding grounds. He has already purchased some hundreds of remounts at fair prices, and they are said to be fully up to the standard required for the Indian services.

H. H. the Persian Consul and General Albert Houtum Schindler, Inspector General of Persian Telegraphs, were the guests of the native Philharmonic Society at Grant Road, on Saturday night. The principal feature of the entertainment was a rendering of Carnatic music by two professors of the art. They played upon the violin, instead of the orthodox sarungee, displaying admirable mistery over the instrument. General Schindler is said to be a very good Oriental scholar, and has published some works on the Parsee scriptures. He has now been about twenty years in the service of the Shah, and has explored and surveyed the most outlying districts of His Highness's dominions. He is said to be very well disposed towards the Zoroastrians of Persia, and to have always exercised his influence at court in their favour. The Philharmonic Society, which consists mostly of Parsee members, received him very cordially. General Schindler has come here as the Agent of the Shah of Persia to superintend the docking and repairs of His Highness's steamer, Persepolis. The vessel, which arrived in this harbour a few days ago from Bushire, was built by the express order of the Shah, two years ago, by a firm at Bremen. She is very luxuriously fitted up with a grand saloon for the Shah, and forty cabins for his nobles and followers. The vessel is intended as a pleasure yacht for the Shah, and has cost about £30,000. There are three Krupp's breech-loading guns on board. The steamer is commanded by Captain Bortfeldt, and has a mixed crew of Indians and Persians.

A serious accident happened on the Oudh and Rohilkund Railway on Monday at Barampur, between Moradabad and the Ganges. A coupling broke, resulting in the collapse of four third-class carriages and the damage of their inmates. Two native passengers had their legs broken, and nine others were more or less hurt. The line between Rurki and the Ganges is blocked owing to the earth-work approach to the bridge at Chaksar having been washed away by heavy floods.

The quantity of tea exported from China and Japan to Great Britain from the commencement of the season to the 15th of July was 67,897,750lbs., compared with 59,103,131lbs. in the corresponding period of last year. The exports to the United States and Canada during the same period were 23,927,716lbs., as against 14,538,657lbs.

Information has reached Vizagapatam that the leader in the last outbreak among the Rumpas has been arrested and safely lodged in jail. The majority of his followers, however, have escaped into the jungles, were it is almost impossible to follow them at this present season owing to the unhealthy climate.

A Ceylon Exhibition has been opened at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, and 70 men, women and children of the Cingalese and Tamil races go through a variety of performances there daily. About a dozen elephants assist in a representation of the famous Perre harra procession which takes place annually at Kandy in honour of Buddha.

A new gold, silver and bronze coinage for the United Kingdom is to be issued in commemoration of this Jubilee year, and the sculptor, Mr. Boehm, is now engaged upon the medallion portrait of the Queen intended for it. Some little criticism has been evoked by the announcement, as it is contended that no more beautiful head can be designed than that which now figure on our coins.

The Great Eastern steamship, which is anchored in the Mersey, is having a successful career at last. She has been converted into a floating palace of amusement. Entertainments take place hourly throughout the day and evening, and the electric lights from stem to stern of the ship enhance considerably the charms of the nightly promenade along her ample decks. Thousands of sightseers—and Liverpool, in consequence of the Exhibition in that city, has more visitors now than ever—throng on board the tug steamers which go out to the Leviathan at frequent intervals.

The reports from every part of Bengal, Behar, and Orissa on the prospects of the crops are most favourable. From Darjeeling to Poona, from Lohardugga to Chittagong, the Collectors join in a chorus of satisfaction. This is important at the present season, when the rain rice is being harvested, the winter rice is being transplanted, while sugarcane is forward, and jute approaches maturity. All the above crops are excellent everywhere, and nowhere better than in Bogra, from which the Collector reports "aus and jute being rapidly cut, outturn very good, 17 to 19 annas." It seems as if a succession of bad seasons was to be followed by a cycle of unusual abundance.

The principal commercial staple of the Garo Hills is cotton, but last year the quantity exported was only 55,000 maunds, as against 80,000 maunds in the previous year. The cultivators, however, do not seem to have suffered any loss on account of the diminished exports, as many new buyers went up to Tura, and the competition among them kept prices high. There are altogether ten principal markets, besides several smaller ones in the district, at which the price for uncleaned cotton varied from Rs. 4 to Rs. 5 per maund, and that for cleaned cotton from Rs. 16 to Rs. 18, or nearly 20 per cent. higher than the prices of the previous year.

A telegram states that the London deliveries of Indian tea in July amounted to 5,200,000 pounds, and the stock in London on the 31st of July to 15,230,000 pounds. The deliveries last July were 3,900,000 pounds, and in July, 1884, 4,700,000 pounds. The shipments from Calcutta for London in July were 7,477,000 pounds, the corresponding figure for July of the past two years being 6,277,000 and 5,767,000. The London stock is also larger than in the two previous year. Since the 1st of January, the consumption has been 40,110,000 pounds, as compared with 41,220,000 pounds cleared during the same time last year, and 36,130,000 pounds in 1884.

The study of veterinary science is steadily on the increase in England, and during the last educational year no fewer than 102 students entered the Royal Veterinary College in London, being the largest number that ever entered in one year since the College was founded in 1791.

The total value of property stolen in the town and suburbs of Calcutta in 1885 was Rs. 97,504, while in the previous year it was Rs. 1,53,184. The percentage recovered, however, was only 49·65, as against 68·75, but it is stated that the recoveries in 1884 were unusually large, owing to the fact that a large sum stolen in previous years was recovered.

The death is announced of the vicar of Islington the Rev. Daniel Wilson. He was 80 years of age, and had been vicar of Islington since 1832, when the population of the whole parish consisted of only 30,000 people. A son of the well-known Bishop Wilson, of Calcutta, the late vicar was throughout his life a staunch supporter of the Evangelical party, and was always firmly opposed to the ritualistic movement. He was a prebendary of St. Paul's.

Prompt measures were taken by the police in connection with the recent riot in the Lahore District. On the day of the occurrence, July 26th, seven of the fourteen persons implicated were arrested; and another was arrested the next day while attempting to enter the village. Four more were arrested on the 28th July in neighbouring villages; where they had taken refuge with their kinsfolk. This left two still to be accounted for, Prem Singh and Sodagar Singh; and two constables were left in the locality to keep a look out for them. On Friday night, the 30th ultimo, this Prem Singh tried to make his way into the village; but, finding, no doubt, that nearly all his accomplices had been captured, went off and hanged himself on a tree in his own field. Only Sodagar Singh is now at large, and the police expect to take him shortly. The case has been sent up for trial before Alam Shah, Extra Assistant Commissioner. The men who were wounded in the fray are being treated in the Mayo Hospital, and are all doing well.

Lieutenant-Colonel Woodcock will officiate as Pay Examiner, until the arrival of Lieutenant-Colonel Cautley from Madras, and Lieutenant C. Mardall will officiate as 2nd Pay Examiner. Before leaving for Simla, Colonel Perreau issued a highly eulogistic farewell departmental Order on the approaching retirement of Lieutenant-Colonel Durand, and the officers of the department entertained him at a farewell dinner.

I know nothing of the merits of the case beyond the fact that Captain Harkness (who was formerly in the King's Dragoon Guards) has been unfortunate enough more than once to fall under the censure of the authorities, and eventually had, I believe, to leave the 5th Dragoon Guards for certain irregularities. If the case comes to trial it will be heard before one of the Courts in Dublin, but not before November next."

BOMBAY AND POONA AT CRICKET.

POONA, Aug. 7.

Throughout the whole of to-day, that portion of the populace of Poona, that gives its mind to cricket, has been in a state of sustained nervous excitement, indicated by a congestion of carriages outside the old Gymkhana pavilion, and a highly-inflammable crowd of feverishly anxious partizans for one team or the other within. With tantalising uncertainty the fate of the contest hung in the balance throughout the day, and until within five minutes of the time fixed for terminating the play, the issue of the match was a matter for keen speculation. In the end the victory rested with Poona by 48 runs, no fewer than 656 having been scored in the course of this two days' battle on the turf. As I said in my telegram on Friday evening, the game up to that point was in favour of the visitors, but this morning the continued stand of their captain infused new spirit into his men, by whom Colonel Lyttelton was so well-supported that instead of going out as on the opening day in an hour and a half, they were only dismissed with difficulty after staying at the wickets thrice as long, and quadrupling their original score. Colonel Lyttelton going in with three wickets down for ten runs, and with 56 to the lead on the former innings, achieved the splendid feat of remaining undislodged for three hours, despite all the bowling talent arrayed against him, and raising the score to 171. Of this total, his own share in actual runs was 84, consisting of one 5 (a lovely cut), six 4's, six 3's, and the rest doubles and singles. More than one chance was given in the course of this brilliant innings, and the fielding of the Bombay team, which fell to pieces towards the end of the first day, must be held responsible for the change which the completion of the game underwent. It would be difficult to find two wickets differing to such an extent, as the match grounds of Poona and Bombay. After playing on their own spongy Esplanade, the old Gymkhana ground here came to the Bombayites as an agreeable change; but the comparative rapidity of the run-getting gave them a severe fagging. The unfailing accuracy with which the balls were fielded in the first Poona innings, and the smartness of the returns made the want of form shown towards the close of the day, a painful spectacle for those who had cast in their lot with the visitors. Even with the glorious uncertainties of the cricket-field, it needs no oracle to affirm that had the chances given yesterday afternoon long before the bowling was mastered, been snapped up as they should have been, the whole course of the match would have been altered. As it was, the dismissal of the last man of the Poona team after tiffin to-day, left the Bombay representatives an almost hopeless feat to achieve victory, or in other words to run up 320 in three-and-a-quarter hours. Still with the rapid scoring of their captain, the brilliant hittings of Holland, and the fine stand made by Major Beaver an exciting finish became a certainty. When the ninth wicket fell, it seemed almost a foregone conclusion a draw would have to be registered, but almost on the call of time, the last man was got rid of, and the spectators shouted themselves hoarse for the victors, who deserved the warmest congratulations for so pluckily pulling the match out of the fire. The following are details of the play:—

Having won the toss, the Poona captain yesterday sent in Colonel Meares and Major FitzHerbert to make a commencement in sunshiny weather never afterwards clouded. Colonel Meares cut Gaddum's opening ball for a couple without hesitation; and his partner spoilt Holland's beginning with a single; but in changing ends the latter received Gaddum's second attack, the fourth ball of which he played into his wicket. The first wicket for 3 runs. Colonel Meares went four overs later, putting one from Gaddum into Halland's hands at slip, as neatly as if he had tried for it. Two wickets for 10. The midday gun was fired as a single by Captain de Hoghton sent up 20, Wilson, who started for a difficult catch, stumbling on the turf. Next ball this batsman was bowled by Gaddum first knocking the leather on to his pad whence it cannoned against the stumps. Three for 20. Cox, the new comer, as had been the case with the preceding batsmen, at once broke his "duck's egg" and then got Holland away for a couple, with the score at 23, the fourth wicket fell to Gaddum, Major Beaver at point smartly snapping up Lindner with one hand straight out from the shoulder. Vidal next gave a hot chance to Gaddum at slip; but it was a stinging cut on the left hand of the scout. A single brought Vidal back to the same end for the swift bowler's succeeding over, when he put up a similarly hard chance to Macbeth, and then drove the last ball for three. Another of Gaddum's maidens intervened (he had sent down six maidens in twelve overs so far), and Holland bowled Cox with a bailer, his first wicket. Five wickets for 29. The Gymkhana captain, who filled the vacancy, cut the next ball to the boundary for the first four in the match. Then forcing the running at considerable risk 40 was brought up, but the policy was fatal to Vidal, who was run out after more than one warning of Gaddum's smartness in picking up the ball. The sixth wicket fell for the same number, captain Steele giving an easy chance to point without scoring. Colonel Lyttelton smacked Gaddum to the off for four, the ball being badly missed, Captain Hughes was clean bowed by Holland at 51, with a nasty low ball. Muspratt-Williams received a hard knock at the wicket from one of Holland's balls which jumped up suddenly, but on his partner's call ran a leg bye, and was afterwards rubbed down amid a shout of applause for his pluck and irresistible laughter at his contortions. Nothing daunted by this accident which bruised his elbow badly, and by a second ball received on the leg immediately after from Holland, whose pace was tremendous, Williams played carefully and helped on his captain's run getting with some timely hits. At 69 a change was made in the bowling. Wilkins, who took Gaddum's end, opened unfortunately. Williams smacked the first ball for a single, and Colonel Lyttelton got the second to leg for a trio. His second was a maiden, and with the first ball of Gaddum's next over, Williams was caught and bowled. 23 had been put on since the fall of the last wicket, the ninth falling for 74. Clowes got a loose ball of the same over to square leg for three; but was out leg before to the second ball from Wilkins. The innings terminated at a quarter past one for 77, the Poona captain having made 28 in good style.

At half-past one Major Wyer and Wilkins went in, and Lindner opened the bowling. Wilkins drove him for a single, and the Bombay captain cut him neatly for four. Meares' first ball from the other end was sent to the scoring board by Wilkins for a second four. A single off the next ball brought up ten, and Wilkins sent Lindner's again afield for three off the tenth ball, which Wyer smicked almost off the ground, he was smartly snapped up in the slips, Wilson picking up the ball so dubiously near the ground as to need an appeal to the umpire. Wilkins made his second four by cutting Meares beautifully towards the trees, and Holland brought up twenty after ten minutes' play by another quartette. A pretty cut by Wilkins off Meares yielded three. Thirty was brought up by Holland's second four, a loose ball from Lindner being cut in the pavilion. A three came next, Wilkin's contribution for a smart hit to leg, but it was his last. At 34 Clowes took Lindner's end, the change was successful. At his second delivery, a half volley, Wilkins made a mistake and played back. Two wickets for 34, Holland made his third four by a square leg hit to the telegraph board, which the Poona captain vainly made a desperate effort to stop. 41 runs had been made in half-an-hour when tiffin intervened. After an hour's interval, play was resumed, when Cox went on instead of Meares. Major Beaver hit the new bowler for three from a full pitch, but returned one of Clowes later on, and the bowler held on to as hot a drive as could well be given. Holland, whose place was filled by Gaddum, had made three fours, a three and a two. Gaddum began with singles, then lifted Cox to leg for a couple, without giving a chance to Colonel Lyttelton, who was keenly alive in that directions, and next drove straight past the bowler for a two. He had added another three to his total, when at 63 he was clean blowed by Clowes, who was trundling in excellent styles, with a dangerous pitch. A well-deserved four was run for a fine hit by Blackwell, who took one of Clowes' deleveries to square leg. 70 went up half-an-hour after tiffin. Clowes was knocked away by each batsman for a couple, Major Beaver's being a three hit with one short run, and then the military man lopped the Poona score by a hit towards the spectator's refuge, Colonel Lyttelton saving the ball on the verge of the four boundary. Major Beaver had put together 24 by good play when his bails were removed by Clowes with the score at 89. Colonel Meares resumed bowling in place of Cox. Blackwell drove him for a couple, and then skied him to the on for five, the hit of the day so far. At 98 Major Stopford was bowled in Meares' next over, without having scored. On Wilson joining him, Blackwell put a single to his credit, and sent a four to the tent, which at once completed and exceeded the century as four o'clock struck. 111 had been reached before Wilson had an opportunity, Blackwell having received the bowling meanwhile. At this juncture he faced the deliveries of Clowes, who bowled him. Only four runs had been added when Blackwell, who had hit freely for 38, succumbed to a ball from Meares which shot in from the off; Merriman got a single from a let off at slip. Gould spooned Meares to leg for three, and some slow play ensued. At 137 Merriman let a ball from Cox pass him in rather easy-going fashion. Macbeth was the last man in, but early next over Clowes caught and bowled Gould, thus terminating the innings. At ten minutes to five, Poona started their second innings with 56 to the lead. Six runs were scored off, the first over (Gaddum's), Major FitzHerbert putting the new ball behind the wicket for three, and Captain de Hoghton scoring two and a signal. Holland opened with a maiden from the other end, and from his sixth ball FitzHerbert was given out leg before, as he moved at a full pitch. In Gaddum's fourth over, he caught and bowled Colonel Meares. This was a beginning more woful than earlier in the day, two good wickets having gone for eight runs. Holland was bowling with rare precision and pace. On his fourth successive maiden over he clean bowled Lindner. Third wicket for nine runs. All hopes now centred on the Poona captain, who filled the vacant wicket. Having run a single off Gaddum, Colonel Lyttelton opened his shoulders at the first ball he received from the swift bowler, and cut him beautifully for five, which was run out amid unceasing applause from the ground. Captain de Hoghton spoilt Holland's fifth over by putting him away prettily for three. At 32, when Colonel Lyttelton and his partner, Captain de Hoghton, had both achieved double figures, Blackwell relieved the Bombay cricket secretary. His first ball was a wide, his third the Poona captain despatched for three, and his fourth gave Captain de Hoghton a couple. Wilkins, who went on at the other end, was cut to the pavilion for four, and Colonel Lyttleton had a let-off in the same over, Blackwell missing a catch at slip amid a shout of triumph from the Poonaites. Still the scoring continued. At six o'clock 50 was telegraphed, and five minutes later the "dead horse" was got rid of, chiefly with the aid of an overthrow which enabled Colonel Lyttelton to credit himself with a quartette. The captain again made a pretty cut off Wilkins for 4. Blackwell having sent down four overs was replaced at 60 by Macbeth, who stopped the run-getting with a couple of maidens. In this second over, a bye counted four, but in attempting to run a single on the last ball, an ill-judged attempt, Major Stopford ran from the wicket, secured the ball only a dozen yards away, and removed Captain de Hoghton's bails with a throw. He had been at the wicket eighty minutes for 21 runs, but 58 had been put on since the last wicket. Cox, the new bat, hit Wilkins into the air, giving the bowler a certain catch. Blackwell ran forward at the same time, and the two men stood calmly awaiting the descent of the ball. A shout of derision broke from the on-lookers as between the two the ball fell to the ground. Cox, profiting by this mishap, rapidly got into double figures, one of his hits being sent neatly to the pavilion boundary. At 81 Gaddum with Holland again took up the bowling. The stumps were drawn at 94, Colonel Lyttelton and Cox, the not outs, being 43 and 18, respectively.

It was half-past eleven when Colonel Lyttelton and Cox walked to the wickets this morning. The Poona captain got a single by a wretched snick off Gaddum, which he repeated when brought back to the same wicket by a three, which Cox put to his account. The century was brought up by Colonel Lyttelton off Holland's first ball. Two other singles and then three successive maidens and by ones the score mounted to 109. A four towards the nullah hit by Colonel Lyttelton off Holland varied the monotony. This brought on Wilkins in his stead, and at 116 he scattered the bails of the younger player, half an hour after the resumption of the game. Vidal joined his captain, and after opening with a single, he got Wilkins round to leg for three. This bowler then received severe punishment from the Poona captain, who slogged him for four, cutting him for a couple, and driving him past the bowler for a single. Gaddum took two overs in succession from the opposite end. The first ball from his new wicket was put by Colonel Lyttelton into the ladies' tent for four, and the second was despatched to the on for three. Wyer tried bowling for the first time in the match at this juncture, but Colonel Lyttelton brought up 140 off the first ball, with a cut over Macbeth's head at point. Macbeth took another turn with the leather at 145, relieving Gaddum. Vidal cut him in the third over for three, and sent up 150. By steady play 162 was slowly raised, and Macbeth gave up the ball to Wilkins. At one o'clock 170 was signalled, and with a single added Colonel Lyttelton had his brilliant career ended, the honour of disposing of the Poona champion falling to Wilkins' bowling. Six wickets for 171. Gaddum went back to his old end for an over or two, but Captain Steele and Vidal put on the runs rapidly, boundary hits coming freely, and the bowling seemed completely at fault. At 197 Holland relieved Wilkins, Captain Steele cut him to the tent, causing the second century to be elevated amid shouts from the Poona men. A single intervened, and the last ball of the over was hit by Vidal on the other side. Major Stopford missed a swift catch behind the wicket with which Captain Steele gave him half a chance. The next change was made with Macbeth in Wilkins place, the latter taking Gaddum's favourite wicket. Vidal, when bowled by Macbeth, had put together 50 minus one in first-class style, without giving a chance during an innings lasting nearly two hours. Seven wickets for 236. Captain Hughes fell to the same bowler next over without scoring, spooning up a ball to point. After tiffin Clowes was caught and bowled by Macbeth at 260. Steel hit Macbeth for four, and Gaddum took up the bowling from the pavilion end. At 3 o'clock 270 went up, and Gaddum clean bowled Wilams five minutes later, and brought the Poona innings to a close with 275. Steele carried out his bat with a well played innings of 63.

The Bombay second innings commenced at 3-20, Messrs. Macbeth and Wyer going to the wickets, the bowling being entrusted to Clowes and Colonel Meares. Wyer gave a chance to wicket-keeper at second ball, but was not taken. Macbeth started the score with a good drive for 3 off Clowes, but was given out l.b.w. when the score was at 5. Wilkins followed in, and was caught out by Hoghton at long on, after scoring four. Two wickets for 12 made the Bombay prospects gloomy. Holland was next man in. Runs came very slowly. Poona fielding well. Wyer gave another chance but escaped. Holland drove Meares to the boundary for 4 at the last ball of the over. A run by Holland followed, and 20 came up at 3-45. Holland drove Clowes for 3 next over. Wyer got a two off the same bowler, bringing 30 up at 3-55. Wyer got a 4 off Meares. Wyer followed shortly with another 3 off the same bowler, and 40 went up 4-5. A change in the bowling was tried, Cox trundling, vice Col. Meares. Holland got four off Clowes, and 50 went up at 4-12. Holland got three, and the 60 went up exactly one hour since play began. Holland played a ball of Cox's into Meares' hands, and was held when the score reached 64, after a well played innings of 31. Major Beaver began with three off Cox and sent up 70 at 4-30. At 77 the bowlers were again changed, Lindner taking Cox's place. The batsmen were playing steadily, and a good drive by Beaver off Clowes brought 80 up at 4-40. Wyer sent a skier to Cox, but was again let off, and made a very fine straight drive for 4 off Clowes. At 98 Lindner and Clowes changed ends, and Williams went on instead of the latter, but the 100 went up after a couple more overs at 5 o'clock. 110 was registered as Wyer completed his 50 by a pretty cut, but at 115, a catch at deep field by Vidal ended the Bombay captain's well hit innings. Four wickets down. Gaddum got a single in the second over he received, and Major Beaver cut Lindner for a couple. Gaddum, to the dismay of his admirers, was then beaten by the second ball he took from Williams, and gave way to Blackwell. The new man played steadily the first over or so, contenting himself with a few singles. Launching out at a temptor from Williams, he skied it to the ladies' tent for four, and 130 was shown, but the last ball of the bowler's over was a "Yorker," and dismissed him. With six wickets down and ninety runs required, whilst only three-quarters of an hour remained in which to play, victory was rendered impossible, saving a miracle. Major Stopford, eighth man in, ran a couple of singles. His comrade took Lindner prettily to leg for 3, slipped Williams for a couple, and got a single for a hard drive. Here he lost his new associate, Major Stopford, who was bowled at 138. Clowes was put saw the cavalcade riding out, the remark was generally made that the expedition was a foolhardy one, and that it was simply insanity for a lady to brave such perils, which were terrible enough for men. Warbrick informs me that the party went to Kaiteriria, and, finding the Katokakahi track absolutely dangerous, he guided it by a track only known to himself over the hills, coming over the ranges at the south-east of M'Rae's, and reaching Wairoa at two o'clock on Sunday afternoon. A north-easterly gale with rain then caught them, and nothing could be done to recover the effects from Way's residence. All rested that night at Sophie's whare. The rain pouring from the hills got through the sand, and avalanches came down from all quarters—from Kumete and from the ranges opposite M'Rae's, across the flat, the thunder of them falling effectually preventing sleep as they poured over Wairoa falls, and down the old bed of the river to Tarawera Inlet. In the morning Humphries and a few others, who had left Waiteriria by canoe reached Rotokakahi-bridge and got into Wairoa. Shortly after Way's party loaded up their three pack-horses with Way's most valuable effects, and started from Wairoa with the intention of reaching Rotokakahi-bridge, and taking the track along the lake of the previous afternoon, they made Wairoa flats, when the site of the native settlement was found to be a lake of mud. Skirting it, they reached the Wairoa-bridge, where the horses got buried up. After tremendous exertion the men unloaded the pack-horses, and got the whole nine horses out, and returned to Wairoa between nine and ten o'clock. Humphries and his natives dissuaded the party from making a second attempt, but to wait for better weather. They declined, and Mrs. Way was left at Wairoa in charge of Foley, and the remaining men of the party started at one o'clock on foot for Rotokakahi-bridge, stripping their trousers off. They reached it, but found the canoes swamped at the inlet to Wairoa river and a strong southerly gale blowing, in which a canoe could not have lived, along Lake Rotokakahi. That was found in a frightful state, with a landslip threatening to project the party bodily over the slope into the lake. They came back to Rotokakahi-bridge, but Arthur Warbrick being a splendid athlete determined to try and break through to Rotorua to procure assistance for the party, hemmed in. His comrades begged him to return with them to Wairoa, as he would only sacrifice his life. He refused and came on, the rest going back. Several times on the track he had landslips in front and behind him, and expected to be shot bodily into the lake, but escaped. His intention if this had happened was, as he was a splendid swimmer, to have swam past the landslip and go on the bank by the aid of the trees. The tremendous exertions he had to make to get through to the track to Kaiteriria exhausted him, but he pushed through to Rotorua, arriving here, as stated above, after dark, dead beat. He states that the nine horses had the last feed this morning, and that the provender being exhausted, the horses must perish from starvation, as they can never be got out. The party used the whole of their five bottles of water yesterday, believing that they could get out to-day. Warbrick says, they could catch no rains on the roofs of the houses, as all were covered with mud. He got a little this morning by drinking out of the hollow print of a horse's hoof. The party are not badly off for provisions, as they took a dozen loaves, and the Maoris plundering M'Rae's store had left some of the stores, such as tinned meats, salmon, &c. The real difficulty is water, but some of the Rotorua residents say a cask of water had been planted and buried under Humphries's house, and that he, being in Wairoa, will know of the cache. On Arthur Warbrick reaching Rotorua to-night, Mr. Johnson, Government agent, was at once informed of the tidings. He authorised Black to procure three horses, and arrange for the despatch of the brothers Arthur and Alfred Warbrick and a brake to-morrow morning for Kaiteriria, giving them also orders to the chief of the settlement, Hohepa Tauhuroa, to furnish canoes to proceed to Rotokakahi-bridge, when the Warbrick Bros. will make for Wairoa, bringing out the party to the bridge. Warbrick says that with the present strong southerly wind no canoes can get back across the lake or indeed face the sea. He saw only the gunwale of Humphries's canoe in the sand at Rotokakahi-bridge, and knew it was hopeless to try and reach Kaiteriria by canoe, and never attempted it. The canoes on the lake, he states, are very poor affairs, and are simply shallows. It is believed, as the party have provisions, they will be able to stay at Wairoa till the weather breaks, and passing showers, with ordinary ingenuity in catching rain, will furnish them with all the necessities of life in the way of water.

THE PHANTOM CANOE.

SINCE the terrible volcanic eruptions at Rotomahana New Zealand, the natives have recounted a weird narrative of a "phantom canoe," which was seen on Lake Tarawera, a few days prior to the catastrophe, and which is now considered by the Maoris to have been a supernatural warning of the approaching event.

Mr. G. L. Sise, who has just returned to Dunedin from the Hot Springs district, was one of the party of tourists who encountered the "phantom canoe" on Lake Tarawera shortly be forethe eruption, and, remarks the Otago Witness, in view of the many extraordinary stories that have found publicity, it may be just as well to give an unvarnished account of the apparition. Stripped of its adornments—adornments not supplied by the narrator—the tale told by Mr. Sise is something as follows:—His party, composed of six Europeans, and nine Maoris, started from Wairoa in a canoe at about eight o'clock one fine morning to cross the lake to the terraces. When a little more than half way across another canoe emerged from the shore some distance to the northward, and kept a parallel course with them until a headland shut it from view. The strange craft might have been half a mile or so distant, or possibly more, it is not easy to judge distance upon the water. Mr. Sise thinks that about nine persons were counted in the "Phantom Canoe" not thirteen, and as to their being "naked warriors" the craft was by no means near enough to ascertain whether they were clothed or not, and there was absolutely nothing, an evidence to show that they were warriors. They might have been apple women or nurse girls. No warrior chief with feathers or anything else in his head gear was seen brandishing his spear in the prow of the boat, but three of the figures did rise to a standing posture after a while. Doubtless, their reason for doing so was that they were tired of sitting down. The canoe was sufficiently close for Mr. Sise to see the flash of the paddles of which there were three on the side nearest him. She was certainly heading in the direction of the old Maori burial place at Mount Tarawera, and the natives in the tourists' boat whistled and shouted to the ghostly paddlers, but received no answer. This supernatural character was not, however, known to the Europeans at this time. It was only after landing, that Mr. Sise and his companions learned that they had been watching the movements of spirits, as ghostly as Vanderdecken's crew, and spirits, too, with a fine muscular development as was evidenced by their style of paddling. Had Mr. Sise known at the time that the canoe and the rower, were things of the air—false creations—he would very probably have been alarmed. As he didn't know, he and his companions were as cool as when they emerged from their morning tub. But the natives were not, and thereby probably hangs the tale.

Things were going very badly with the unfortunate Maoris about this time—some eight or nine days before the eruption. Lake Tarawera was rising and falling, as it had never risen and fallen before within the memory of the oldest inhabitant, or his earliest ancestor. Typhoid fever had been about, and thirteen of the unlucky natives had died within seven weeks. Moreover, among the deceased was an old venerated chief whom they had of course kept above ground in a state of putrescence, and over whose remain they had been holding a great tangi. They had an old woman too amongst them at Wairoa—an infernal character, skilled in the black art—by whose machinations the defunct chief had been called to his account. They had also among them a tohunga, or professional prophet, who had served his apprenticeship to the business, and had been sent for specially to curse the witch, who had killed the chief. He was a vigorous and proficient curser, and great results were expected from his efforts. In view of all these disturbing elements, it is not surprising, that Mr. Sise and his companions found the poor Maoris at Wairoa greatly excited. Between present troubles and portents of greater troubles to come they were in a state of abject superstitious terror, and were prepared for anything marvellous from a mermaid to a banshee. The boat in which they were traversing the lake was the boat of the dead and decaying chief, and on board was one ancient harridan who crooned dismally during the passage. This naturally did not improve matters and the consequence was that by the time the terraces were reached they had arrived at the conclusion that the end of the world was at hand, and turned to the pakehas with the cheerful announcement, "We all die to-day."

The only really peculiar feature about the incident, according to Mr. Sise's account, is that the canoe seen was of a singular shape, raised at either end higher than usual, and it is asserted by both Europeans and Maoris that there is no such canoe on the lake. This is, undoubtedly odd, to say the least of it, and Mr. Sise is inclined to the belief that it was a "got up arrangement"—a "put up job"—on the part of the tohunga, who was painfully aware that it was about time he did something for a living, and needed some unusual accessories to produce anything like a satisfactory effect upon the Maori public. An ethereal canoe, manned by phantoms is a very impressive apparition if viewed with due reverence, and in fact, it should be part of the stock-in-trade of any properly regulated prophetic establishment. It is possible, therefore, that Mr. Sise's surmise is correct. Whether correct or not, the bald facts in his narrative are as stated above.

A MOHAMMEDAN FESTIVAL IN AUSTRALIA.

THE Age thus describes the celebration of the great Mohammedan Festival in Melbourne:—About ten o'clock in the morning a dozen cabs freighted with Hindoos in their national costume drove up to the vice-regal lodge on the St. Kilda-road and came to a stop just in front of the gates. The few people who were about at that hour were considerably puzzled to know what was the occasion of this strange gathering, and the suggestion of an ingenious bystander that the Hindoos had come to the domain for the purpose of celebrating the anniversary of American Independence did not help much to elucidate matters. Upon alighting from the cabs the motley party entered the gate leading to the observatory reserve, and, forming themselves into a procession, they proceeded some distance along the path until they reached a comparatively clear space. Here they halted, and were arranged by a dark bearded distinguished looking personage, who was evidently their leader, into two long lines. It was now evident that a religious ceremonial of some kind was about to be performed. The dark bearded elder, who was clad from head to foot in pure white muslin, placing a stool in front of the two long lines of devotees, covered it with a richly embroidered cloth and took from the hands of an attendant acolyte a volume of the Koran, wrapped in a silken handkerchief which was also gorgeous with embroidery. Reverently laying the sacred volume on the stool, he prostrated himself on the ground before it, in which act of devotion he was immediately followed by the silent crowd of worshippers. Four times this prostration was repeated, the priest occasionally saying in a loud voice "Allah Akbar"—God is Great. He then opened the Koran, and mounting on the stool read passages enjoining his hearers to observe the virtues of universal charity and forgiveness of wrongs. During this portion of the ceremony, the rigid silence which had been previously observed was occasionally broken by what appeared to be zealous responses from the congregation, which numbered about eighty. After about an hour spent in this manner the Hindoos returned to their vehicles, and were driven to their quarters in Little Bourke-street and Fitzroy, where feasts had been prepared, and the remainder of the day was spent in entertaining their friends.

This was the feast of Id, one of the two great annual Mohammedan festivals. The feast of Id folllows after a month of fasting, during which the bodies and souls of all true believers are supposed to be purified by prayer and mortification of the flesh. The day is fixed after the night upon which the new moon is first seen. In India the new moon is eagerly watched for by the priests, who ascend to the loftiest minaret of their mosques for that purpose. It is essential that the devotions of the Id should be paid in the open air, and in Calcutta as many as 500,000 Mahommedans assemble every year on the open plain near the city to take part in the ceremony. Like the Jewish feast of Jubilee the Id is a time for forgiveness of injuries and reconciliation of estranged friends. While it lasts hospitality and alms giving are freely extended to all comers, and the gospel of peace and good will is practised by all followers of the prophet. Of the members of the little Mohammedan colony settled in Melbourne very few were absent, and these only by reason of sickness. There is at present no Mohammedan priest or mollah in Melbourne, and the Hindoo who officiated was chosen simply because of his reputation for sanctity. Before the feast comes round again, however, they hope to import a priest from India.

I had four wounds which prevented me following my occupation for four years, during which time I have been in five different infirmaries and under fifteen different doctors I was at last induced to try your Blood Mixture, and after taking three small bottles I was able to go to work, and by the time I had taken nine or ten bottles I was completely cured. HAY'S GINGER CHAMPAGNE ESSENCE,
For the manufacture of Ginger Champagne. This Essence is a combination of the finest flavours, and imparts with the Ginger a most exquisite aroma, making a most delicious and refreshing approximation to Champagne. Trade Price, 3s. per lb.; 12 lbs. and upwards, 7s. 6d. per lb. Quantity required, 10 fluid ozs. to each gallon of Syrup, making 106 10-oz.  NOTE.—The above are specially recommended to Clubs, Hotels, Messes, and Stores requiring the very finest Essences obtainable. There is nothing in the market to equal them.*

HAY'S TONIC ALE ESSENCE.
Specially prepared as a "pick-me-up" for hot climates. Price, 6s. 6d. per lb.; 12 lbs. and upwards, 6s.

A few of the many Reports of the leading highest Medical and other Journals on my Preparations may be quoted :—

SOLUBLE ESSENCE OF GINGER.
"It should entirely supersede the official preparation of the British Pharmacopœia."—Medical Press.
"This Essence is of a very delicate and beautiful appearance, the aroma is fine and powerful, and its strength is very great indeed. The flavour is really exquisite, and it concentrates in quite an extraordinary degree the very best aromatic qualities of ginger."—Drinks, London, September 1, 1884.

GINGER CHAMPAGNE MADE FROM HAY'S ESSENCE.
"An excellent and most agreeable beverage."—The Lancet. "One of the most delicate and wholesome drinks in the market."—Medical Press.
"The fine Aroma of Ginger which Mr. Hay has caught with remarkable success is an excellent substitute for Alcohol, as it gives what old port wine drinkers used to call 'body,' and to many people besides professed tectotalers, an occasional change at least from the Royal French Beverage to its less costly, but equally sparkling and more refreshing, English rival, is a welcome treat.—The Chemist and Druggist.

GINGER ALE MADE FROM HAY'S FORTIFIED ESSENCE.
"It pours out with as fine a 'head' as any glass of ale, and possesses all the fine aromatic flavour of the pure ginger. It is a beverage which is sure to win favour wherever introduced."—The Chemist and Druggist.

The difference between preparations made from the above Essences and those made from the numerous spurious imitations of the above, bearing the name of Soluble Essences, is most marked, and no manufacturer using the latter can compete with one using Hay's preparations, as is well known in England.

The greatest care is used in packing for export to India, if in 1 lb. Glass Bottles (recommended for finest Essences), the cost of packing and delivering free on board ship at Hull, London, or Liverpool, adds about 7½ per cent. to the cost.

W. HAY cautions the Trade against the use of those spurious so-called Soluble Essences, which, besides having no Ginger Aroma, are Flavourless, Rank, and Disagreeable, and are little more than Tincturas of Capsicum.

W. HAY, Manufacturing Chemist to Aerated Water Manufacturers, HULL, ENGLAND.

Indentors, to prevent disappointment, should specify that the Goods are to be of Hay's manufacture.
